

THE VILLAGE TRIP™

It's Complicated!

New York's 400-Year Relationship with its Waterfront

From its piers, canals, landfills, and seawalls, NYC interacts in complex ways with its evolving waterfront. Now climate change forces a rethink

A panel discussion with Michael Kimmelman, architecture critic of the New York Times | Noreen Doyle, President & CEO of the Hudson River Park Trust | Ben 'Moody' Harney, founder of MotherShuckers | Matthijs Bouw, founder of One Architecture and Urbanism

Friday, September 26 | 5pm – 7pm

Pier 57, Daffodil Room, 15th Street at Hudson River Park

FREE, but booking is advised at www.TheVillageTrip.com

